10:10 - 10:55	Child: The Natural Scientist – Encouraging a Scientific Approach to Learning through CLIL in the Primary Classroom Children are natural scientists—eager to explore, observe, and question the world around them long before they learn to read or write. This presentation explores how CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning) supports young learners in developing both scientific thinking and English language skills across a range of content areas. Through practical experiments, inquiry-based tasks, chants, visuals, and scaffolded language, we'll see how children—from the pre-literacy stage to early literacy—can engage with content, develop curiosity-driven thinking skills, and learn to communicate their discoveries like "little scientists" in the classroom.	Catherine Toomey, Teacher Trainer at British Council
10:55 – 11:25	Coffee break
11:25 – 12:10	Unlock Futures with the British Council For over 90 years, the British Council has shaped brighter futures through English language teaching and assessment, education, arts and creativity, we bring the best that the UK has to offer to the world. Discover how we can help institutions unlock opportunities, from achieving English teaching excellence to opening doors with international exams.	Omar Schiavoni, Head of Business Development at British Council
12:10 - 12:55	AI in Action: Designing Creative CLIL Projects for Young Learners The integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) into educational practices represents an emerging frontier in pedagogical innovation, particularly within the framework of CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning). This presentation investigates the potential of AI-based tools to support Primary School teachers in the planning and implementation of engaging CLIL activities. It will offer practical examples of how AI can be employed to generate interdisciplinary content, tailor language materials to students of various levels, and foster active learning through visual, textual, and interactive resources. The objective is to illustrate how AI can serve as a practical and accessible ally for educators in enhancing both language development and subject learning, even in resource-constrained or mixed-ability classrooms. The session is intended for teachers, educators, and trainers interested in exploring innovative strategies for integrating technology and pedagogy.	Nancy Bailey, Referente CLIL per ANILS Toscana

15:10 - 15:55	From Curious Child to Capable Teen: Using CLIL to Support Growth in Lower Secondary This age group represents a unique and formative stage in a student's development: a transition from the more dependent, imaginative, and playful world of childhood to the more abstract, independent, and socially aware phase of adolescence. Lower secondary students are developing more advanced thinking skills, a stronger sense of identity, and a growing ability to reflect on the world around them. CLIL can play a powerful role during this period by integrating meaningful content with real language use, nurturing both cognitive and linguistic growth. This session introduces practical CLIL strategies for teaching academic subjects to students aged 11 to 14. It explores how to scaffold academic language, balance cognitive and linguistic demands, promote interaction through motivating tasks, and create a sense of community within and outside the classroom.	Catherine Toomey, Teacher Trainer at British Council
16:25 - 17:10	Unlock Futures with the British Council For over 90 years, the British Council has shaped brighter futures through English language teaching and assessment, education, arts and creativity, we bring the best that the UK has to offer to the world. Discover how we can help institutions unlock opportunities, from achieving English teaching excellence to opening doors with international exams.	Omar Schiavoni, Head of Business Development at British Council
17:10 - 17:55	Empowering All Learners: Inclusive Practices and Tools for Supporting Dyslexia We should not simply focus on teaching English. Rather, we should aim to create an environment where authentic and meaningful learning can take place for all students. This involves adopting inclusive methodologies that enable every learner to achieve their objectives, regardless of their individual learning profiles. It is equally important to foster environments that promote self-efficacy, support self-esteem, and provide emotional security. These aspects are particularly crucial for learners with dyslexia. This session will explore the real challenges faced by students with dyslexia and how educators can increase inclusion by offering support and equipping students with the tools they need to succeed. The presentation will cover a variety of inclusive methodologies and classroom strategies that not only address students' needs but also recognize and utilize their strengths. The discussion will include collaborative learning, experiential and emotional approaches, task-based learning, and Total Physical Response (TPR).	Joanna Paolinelli, Managing Director British School IH Pisa
